The Episcopal Palace, Inner Court. The Episcopal Palace, now the Palais de Justice, the erection of which took thirty years during the commencement of the 16th century, has undergone many alterations since the days of Erard de la Marck. Two hundred years after it was finished a fire destroyed the original front, which had to be rebuilt, and the rest of the vast structure was restored in the 19th century.

Thanks for PC of Thursday. No parcel has come from W. They enquired about it to day at the office they suggested writing to you as the parcel five or six weeks ago. I shall write them quite soon. Weather good here.
